2012 Co-op Calendar Celebrates International Year of Cooperatives

Order today for 50% off!

The national Co-op Calendar honors 2012: International Year of Co-ops is now available! The celebratory calendar recognizes the contributions that cooperative enterprises make to their members and communities. The cooperative model provides an organizational framework through which people create jointly-owned democratic enterprises to realize ends they may not be able to achieve as individuals: quality goods and services at a fair price for consumers, fair prices for farmers and ranchers, control and ownership for workers –examples of each of which are highlighted in this calendar.

Each calendar month highlights a particular cooperative business principle, and while each business ultimately incorporates all seven principles, the caption explains how the highlighted principle is exemplified.

This calendar is presented as a celebration of cooperatives and some of the significant people, institutions, and events that fueled their development. This special calendar commemorating International Year of Co-ops will make an excellent gift for staff, clients, friends and relations!
